

MARRIES IN $4 FROCK.

Bridegroom and Minister in Blue Jeans at Wedding at Waldorf.

The first combined effort to combat the High Cost of Living in weddings was made yesterday when all the bridal party wore denim at the wedding of Miss Gertrude Reinhardt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Reinhardt of Cypress Hills, L. I., to W. Ramsay Frederick of Pittsburgh. The ceremony took place at 11 A. M. at the Waldorf-Astoria, the Rev. W. D. Tucker of the Andrews M. E. Church, Brooklyn, officiating.

The bride wore a blue gingham frock made harem style with trimmings of white organdy ruchings and her large white straw hat was wreathed with field daisies. She carried a small market basket filled with daisies. Miss Frances Grotsey of Brooklyn, who was the bride's maid of honor, wore blue checked gingham. The price of each of the frocks was estimated at not more than $4. The minister and the bridegroom, as well as J. A. Reinhardt, brother of the bride, who acted as best man, wore blue jeans and some of the guests were so attired.
